MEMORIAL SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

We've Been Here

It seemed that our summer vacation had just begun when suddenly we found ourselves going back to school. We started the year with mixed emotions due to the changes in administration and the presence of Mason. Despite these changes, the majority of us came with open minds and enthusiasm to make this a great year.

Coupled schools tended to cause some problems but they were worked out. At times we found that sharing with Mason worked to our advantage; being so close to another high school made us realize that we had to unite to distinguish ourselves. Other times we could hardly wait to have Memorial just for Chargers. Even with an expanded parking lot, the competition with Mason for parking spaces meant coming back early from lunch. Many times during fifth hour we rushed to the bookstore, only to find that it no longer belonged to Memorial. As a result of Mason's choice of school colors, we changed back to our original red, white, and Columbia blue. Traffic increased as buses continually shuffled students between school and home. Former Chargers changed loyalties, but that wasn't so bad, because we all were still here everyday. Finally on January 2, Memorial stood alone on Hudson Avenue, freed of her little sister.

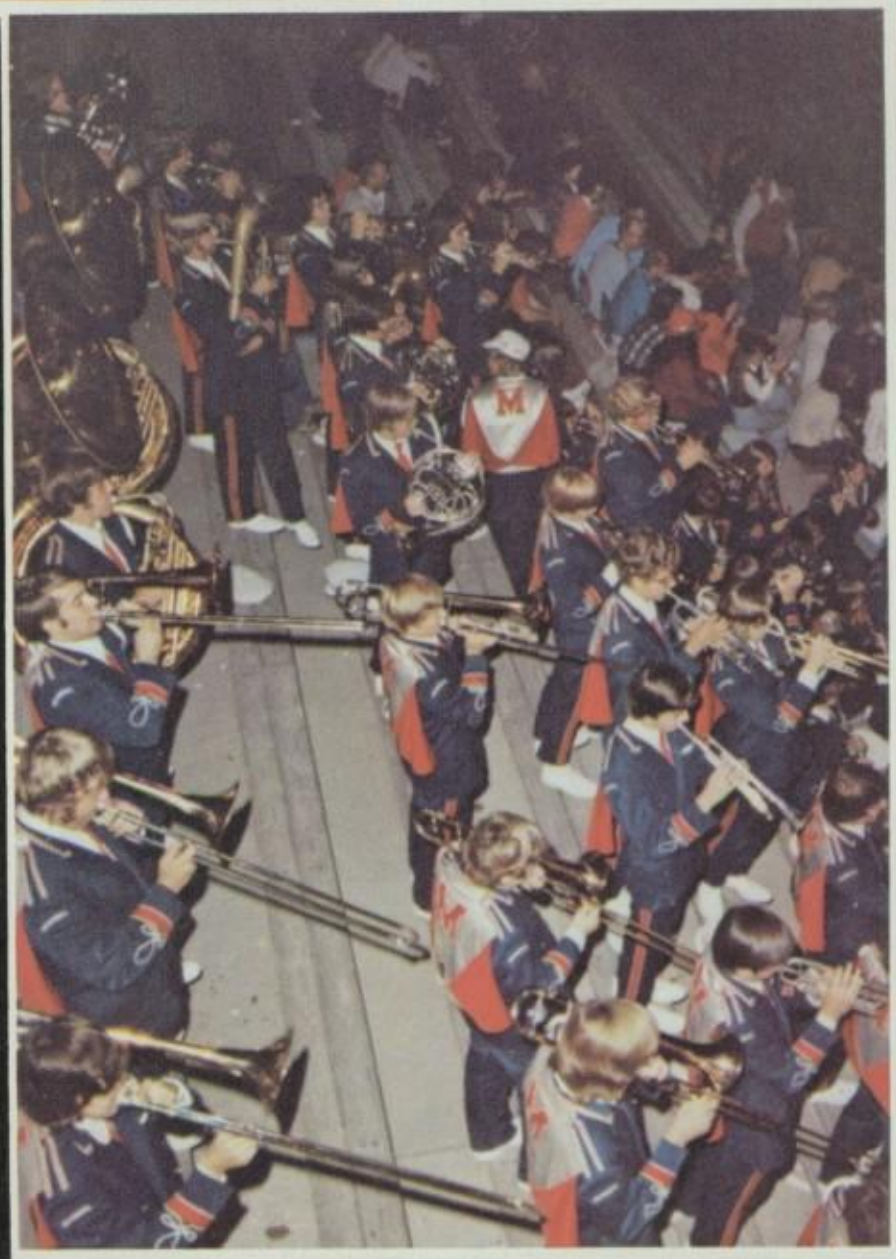
Among the Memorial-Mason mass of humanity we found friends. Our own moods dictated the type of friendship we enjoyed. Sometimes we wanted to be in a crowd; other times we needed one special friend. We got in trouble for talking to our friends in class, but we did it again and again. We could always depend on our friends to have room for one more, if we wanted to go out to lunch or to the game. We talked, we laughed, we cried. Many friends we made just in passing; others we will keep all our lives.



For the first year in a long time Chargers began to show school spirit. The reign of the cool, apathetic Charger had ended. No longer was it considered bad to care for our school. We realized that school spirit did not revolve around sports, but around school pride found in each of us. Proudly we supported the things which represented Memorial. How we displayed our spirit didn't matter, as long as it was there.

CHARGERS

Classes we had to attend should have been foremost in our minds, but usually weren't. Along with the drudgery of homework, tests, and studying there were classes and projects we found we enjoyed. Some classes prepared us for jobs that we might hold; others furthered interests in our hobbies. Most of us were here for an education, a few because we had to be. Many of us, realizing this was our last free education, took advantage of it.

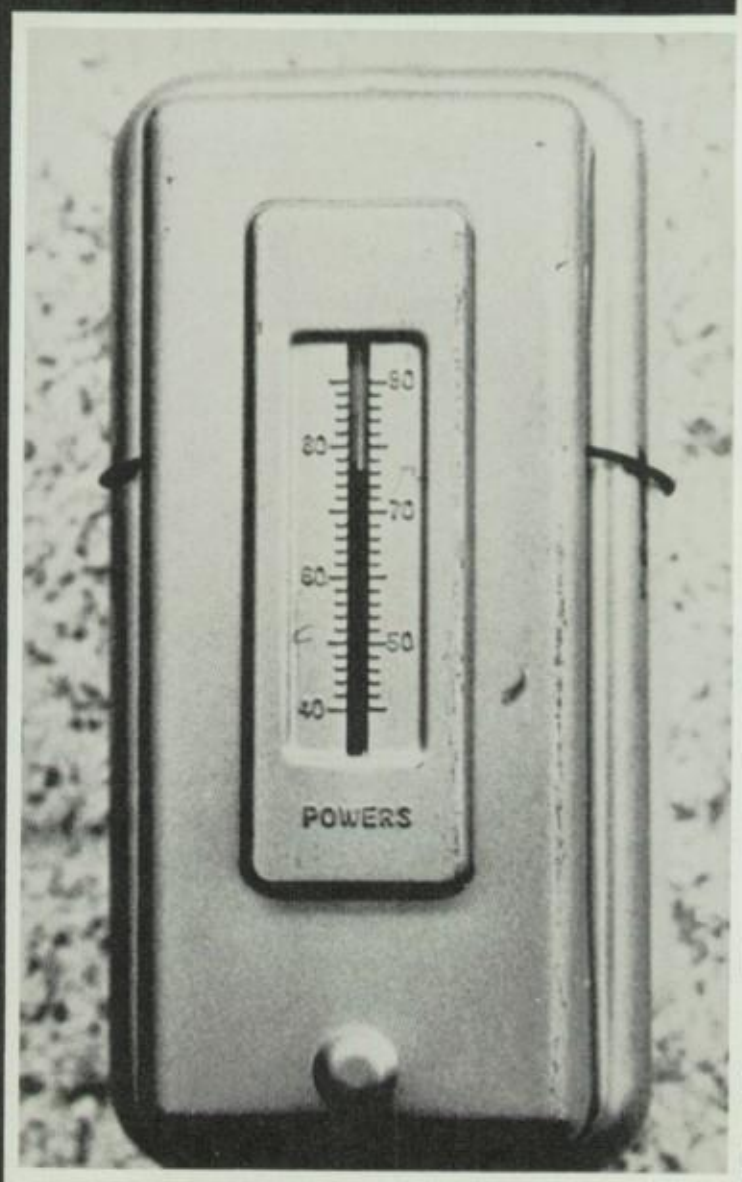
Outside of school, time was our own and we did what we wanted. We frequented many places, mainly eating establishments and kept McDonald's in business. Some of our activities followed traditions, the fair in October and Across the Street after ball games. The park wasn't new or particularly exciting but it was a place to get together and have fun. And if we were bored Southroads always offered a way to spend the day. Our money situation governed most of our plans, but if we could afford it, we were there.



Even though the problems of the outside world seemed remote, a few affected us personally. Newspapers and television forced news of Watergate to our attention. For the first time in our lives we became fully aware of political corruption. In this the year of shortages, we did what we could by participating in the paper drive, topping all other Tulsa schools by saving 1,156 trees. No sooner had the paper drive ended than the President announced an energy crisis. Our thermostats dropped to 68 degrees and gasoline was not to be found on Sunday. With the state of the world as it was, we just waited to see what would hap pen

As interests varied so did our opportunities for involvement. It was our choice as to whether we participated or not. Various classes and groups provided a way for us to display our talents. Our organizations gathered people of similar interests working toward common goals. Students weren't the only ones involved. It wasn't unusual to find teachers outside of classrooms taking part in our activities. In every aspect of school there was something for each of us. Whether we were a participant or a spectator, we held the makings of a great year.

DR. JAMES DARLAND—PRINCIPAL

With the end of the '73-'74 school year we saw the completion of Dr. Darland's first year as principal of Memorial. As an assistant principal at Memorial the past nine years, he easily moved into the top position. Presiding over school activities, he initiated new Programs and revised old ones. He introduced the distributive and cooperative education programs which opened up new opportunities for many of us. Guiding the faculty and us through the Mason-Memorial phase, the adjustments in enrollment, and the time change, Dr. Darland has striven to be aware of change and has initiated new policies as circumstances have arisen, and as we, the students, have changed.

The counselors, deans, and assistant principals were available to help us with the many problems of high school. Mrs. Creager and Mr. Roberts handled unexcused tardies and absences and our personal problems. They also enforced school regulations. Mr. Beller became an assistant principal this year; he and Mr. Schuler worked with us to improve the curriculum. The counselors, Mr. Baer, Miss Bridges, Mrs. Camp, and Mrs. Cox, arranged our class schedules, advised us on courses and helped us make plans for our futures.

Dean Roberts and Brian Hale discuss the upcoming regional baseball tournament.

Much paperwork poured into the office daily, but was ably handled by our office staff. They assisted us in recording attendance, updating and mailing transcripts, preparing the daily bulletin, and performing clerical chores for the faculty and administration. Because of their efficiency our school was well organized, and help was always available to us when needed.

Mrs. Neeley and Mrs. Hemphill print the daily bulletin.

Sophomores Participate in New English Program

Our English teachers combined forces and reconstructed the English program this year. When we arrived at school in September, they were ready and waiting with a new approach to English studies. The main revision came at the sophomore level where, to the disappointment of many upperclassmen, we were given the opportunity to test out of grammar in our junior and senior years. Our teachers placed us in classes according to our ability as demonstrated in a diagnostic test, and we studied grammar for the entire first semester. At the end of this semester, we took a comprehensive test which, if we made a passing grade, gave us the privilege of bypassing junior grammar. Also at the sophomore level, we studied American Literature. Although some of the books were rather difficult to read, we did have the opportunity to read such American classics as Huck Finn, The Scarlet Letter, and Moby Dick. At the Junior level, while continuing our study of grammar, we explored the many facets of English Literature. The entire course was divided into two parts, English Literature 1400 to 1800, and English Literature 1800 to the present. As Seniors we were given an even greater choice of literature. World, European, and Contemporary Literature were all offered as well as Humanities and Creative Writing. Each literature class gave us a background in various writing styles as we read such novels as Anna Karinia, MacBeth, and I'm OK, You're OK. If reading didn't appeal to us, we could apply for the Creative Writing staff which wrote, edited, and published this year's anthology, Amaranth. No matter what our particular interests in the fields of English, there was a class which, hopefully, all of us enjoyed as we attempted to gain a basic understanding of English and as our teachers attempted to prepare us for college and our futures.

Math Department Introduces Analytic Geometry

Memorial offered us many choices of classes in the science field. The life sciences included Biology and Physiology in which we studied plant life, animal life, and the human body. The physical sciences, Chemistry, Earth Science and Physics, taught us about our environment, covering a wide range of topics from outer space to the earth's center. By offering us so many courses from which to choose, our teachers helped us to gain a basic understanding of life forms and their environment.

Solving equations, bisecting angles and figuring logarithims were all part of our math education. With courses ranging in difficulty from Basic Math to Analytic Geometry, we were able to find a class to meet our needs. Geometry was taught through the team teaching method thus giving us the opportunity to learn from several teachers. If we studied Computer Math, we commuted to the Vocational-Technical Center for lab work and study. Calculus, the most advanced course, was offered in an effort to prepare us for college work. Whether we studied Basic Math or Calculus, our teachers worked together to build on a foundation for the more difficult math courses ahead of us.

In foreign language classes we explored not only different languages, but also new cultures. Our teachers scheduled films and special speakers which added to our understanding of the language. Visits from foreign students gave us an insight into the countries of France, Germany, and Mexico. Although we still had to study conjugations and translations, the addition of special activities highlighted our classroom studies.

By enlarging the curriculum and specializing many courses, our history teachers prepared a year's work which they hoped would be both interesting and enlightening. If we were sophomores, the Civil War, prohibition, the Industrial Revolution, and westward movement characterized our classes as we studied about American History from 1850 to the present. As juniors and seniors a wide variety of classes were open to us. If our interests lay in historical studies we were able to choose from World History, Ancient and Medieval History, and Modern History. Economics, Government, and Sociology gave us the opportunity to learn about the various aspects of national money management and leadership. In American Realities we studied current events such as Watergate, inflation, and our nation's many shortages. As a department our teachers worked together to provide interesting films and guest speakers to help us escape from the usual memorization of dates and battles and thus expanded our knowledge of local and national issues.

Exploring new techniques and innovative styles, we painted, sculpted, molded and weaved our way through this year. The various art courses offered gave us the opportunity to take classes which coincided with our interests and levels of advancement. We worked hard all year, learning new skills and improving old ones in an effort to produce something truly unique. The annual spring art show provided us an opportunity to display, compare and even sell our works which included paintings, ceramics, jewelry, weldings, and macrames. The show which was on exhibit for four days in the girls' gym concluded with the presentation of an art scholarship to Beth Johns who was judged "Best of Show". Our year ended with the completion of a project of our choice and a thorough cleaning of the rooms in preparation for next year.

Oration, debate, and drama were the three major subjects we studied in the speech department. With an overall goal of improving creative communication, the speech teachers attempted to inspire us to improve our skills and techniques. We trained for state and district speech contests and many of us received awards in recognition of our efforts. Masque and Gavel, an outgrowth of the speech department, had a very active year. This club offered interested students an opportunity to perform in the Night of One Acts. Throughout the year we rehearsed and presented many plays, skits, and speeches in class and on the stage for the student body. We prepared a Christmas assembly, but it was cancelled due to the snow holiday. We, as individuals, improved our own dramatic and oratory skills as a step to attaining better communications.

Perfection of the basic skills necessary to fill an office position was the goal of the Business Education Department. We learned to type, to take shorthand, to use adding machines and to take dictation. Business teachers also instructed us in the basics of business law and business math. Our year's highlight was Job Week. This week of working in department stores and business offices gave us valuable experience in the practical application of our business skills.

A wide variety of homemaking classes offered us the opportunity to learn and improve many domestic skills. In Clothing I we sewed mainly for ourselves, typing our figures, interpreting patterns, exploring fabrics and making alterations. Clothing II classes spent many hours in the creation of this year's fashion show "Images", in which all clothing students participated.
Foods classes gave us the opportunity to familiarize ourselves with the kitchen and to learn about foods and cooking as well. At the Foods I level we studied basic nutrition and etiquette. Along with learning to plan and prepare a completely balanced meal, in Foods II we learned about the selection, usage and care of multi-purpose products, china, crystal and silver. Those of us in Foods III learned the many complicated facets of cooking involving food storage and foreign cookery. Home living and Home Nursing dealt more with marriage and family life. In Homeliving we planned our weddings, studied the marriage ceremony itself, and designed and decorated our dream house. In Home Nursing we learned the care of the sick, elderly as well as youth, and the processes involved in childbirth. The homemaking classes attempted to give us a basic education in domestic skills which would prepare us for any future we might pursue whether it be as a fashion designer, home economist or simply a housewife.

Gym Classes Strive for

Sondra Wattenbarger and Sharon Cairns directed us in the Girls' Physical Education department. We competed in field hockey, softball, and basketball and learned the skills of gymnastics, modern dance and track. Those of us in the second and third years of physical education were able to participate in tennis, archery, golf, and badminton. During the latter part of the year a new rule was formulated which allowed us to participate in varsity athletics.

Physical education was that part of our required curriculum which strengthened our bodies and taught us sportsmanship. With an emphasis on individual participation we played football, soccer, basketball, and volleyball under the supervision of Coaches Dugger and Sanders. Wrestling, table tennis, golf and swimming were also part of the program. Sixth hour was reserved for those of us who competed as varsity athletes in seasonal sports.

As the class of '74 we entered Memorial ready to be seniors. Finally at the top we were eager to show the other classes that this was our year, and we were going to make it great. In some ways we were like the seniors before us, attending college forums, ordering announcements and looking ahead; yet, we were our own class. Our fall days were filled with pep assemblies, football games, seasonal dances, and homework assignments as we settled down to our final year. Our teachers, especially English teachers, all assured us that they were going to prepare us for college. Quickly we learned that this statement meant memorizing The Lively Art of Writing and deciphering such great literary works as Cat's Cradle, The Bell Jar, Stranger in a Strange Land, and Anna Karynia. Breaking the daily academic routine, early morning intramurals became hotly contested competition as each homeroom strove to prove itself best in flag football, volleyball, and other sports. Thanksgiving vacation was preceded by our class play A Thurber Carnival. This unique, multi-media production presented skits containing drama, audio-visual, musical and dance ensembles. As the fall term drew to a close, we attended our last Christmas Dance, despite the snowy weather, and the Christmas holidays finally arrived. The end of the holidays brought with it the third quarter slump accompanied by three months of vacationless school. An unprecedented event, the crowning of a Memorial state-championship basketball team, brought unexpected life to the long third quarter. For several weeks we became caught up in the spirit of basketball games. Many of us even drove down to Oklahoma City to watch our team "Take State!" Immediately following spring break we began planning the Sadie Hawkins Dance. Our homerooms designed, built, and manned various booths in an effort to boost our class treasury. May brought with it graduation activities with too many things to do and too little time to do them. Not only did we have to finalize our college plans, but also we had to prepare for the prom, vespers and commencement. It seemed that only yesterday we had entered Memorial ready to be seniors, yet suddenly Dr. Darland was handing us our diploma cases and Memorial was closing its doors behind the class of '74.

Promote Junior Involvement

JUNIOR CLASS SPONSOR—Jim Brown

We began the year with the anticipation of making it the best we possibly could. As a class, our first activity was a Junior mixer held early in November. The Valentine dance in February was the most successful project of the year. Senior rings finally brought us closer to realizing that graduating wasn't far away. Probably the most talked about and supported activity of the year was the selling of bumper stickers—Chargers #1—for the celebrated basketball players. The sophomore-junior play, The Ghostess withe the Mostess, added to our finances for next year's senior activities. As individuals, we prepared ourselves for years to come with college entrance exams and thoughts of our futures. All in all, we can say that the Class of '75's second year at Memorial was a success.

IN MEMORIAM

Entering Memorial on Howdy Day, we were swarmed, confused and teased by juniors and seniors selling Howdy Hats, "T"-shirts, club memberships and even elevator passes. We acclimated ourselves quickly, however, to this school which was to become a part of us for the next three years. We learned the fight song, Alma Mater, and Americans's Creed and wore bright red hats to the Charger football games. Our first class project was to elect our officers for the '73-'74 year. After a week of campaigning and trying to meet those candidates whom we didn't know, we chose Rick Schmigle, Kenton Erwin, Cheryl Hays, Nancy Smith and Dana Sanger to guide our first year at Memorial. As a class we planned a nonexistent sophomore dance and sponsored a sparcely attended movie. Our Great Banana Race drew much attention but few participants as we discovered that eating bananas wasn't particularly popular. In April we joined with the juniors to present The Ghostess with the Mostess. This, our most successful project, livened our spirits and brought our treasury into the black. May brought with it elections for this year's class favorites and next year's officers. Our last few weeks as sophs were filled with the confusions and headaches of scheduling for next year and running for classes as we looked forward to our junior year.

Fall Selections Made for Seniors of the Months

Traditionally the fall months bring with them football games, organization membership drives, and coronation activities. For us, the incoming seniors, they also brought the job of selecting a boy and girl to represent each month.

SEPTEMBER—DIANE PARKER, the class of 74's choice of Girl of the Month, was kept busy with school activities her senior year. She served as Vice-President of our Student Council, and was a member of Masque and Gavel, Gamma Sigma, Pep Club and Concert Chorus. She also attended Girls' State and was elected to reign as our Miss Memorial XI. ALEXIS CRENSHAW wore number 12 on his jersey as a member of the varsity football team. A.C. was also a member of Interact and Student Council, and sang in Concert Chorus.

OCTOBER—BETH CLONINGER was secretary of Jr. Civitan, served on Senior Board and was a member of Pep Club. She also excelled academically as shown by her membership in National Honor Society. During his three years at Memorial, BOB GARRETT played an important part in the athletic program. He lettered in varsity football, basketball, and baseball. His senior year he was a member of various clubs including Interact and National Honor Society.

NOVEMBER—LINDA LARAVEA was elected cheerleader her senior year. She was also honored as one of the three attendants to Miss Memorial. As Student Council President, HAROLD BROOKENS stayed busy with the responsibilities that accompanied that office. He was also varsity football manager, attended Boys' State, and was a member of Interact. Harold even helped out in the yearbook assembly, playing the part of "Geraldine" in a humorous skit.

Memorial Students Honor Diane Parker

Our Miss Memorial, Diane Parker, was a very special person. She gave more of herself than was asked to help Memorial accomplish its goals. She was everyone's friend, always willing to help. She participated in our musical and dramatic productions and also served as Stuco vice-president and secretary. As a member of Gamma Sigma, Diane was active in both school and community service projects. She was accepted into National Honor Society and was chosen as September Girl-of-the-Month. Traditionally beautiful, always smiling, Diane was respected by us, her peers.

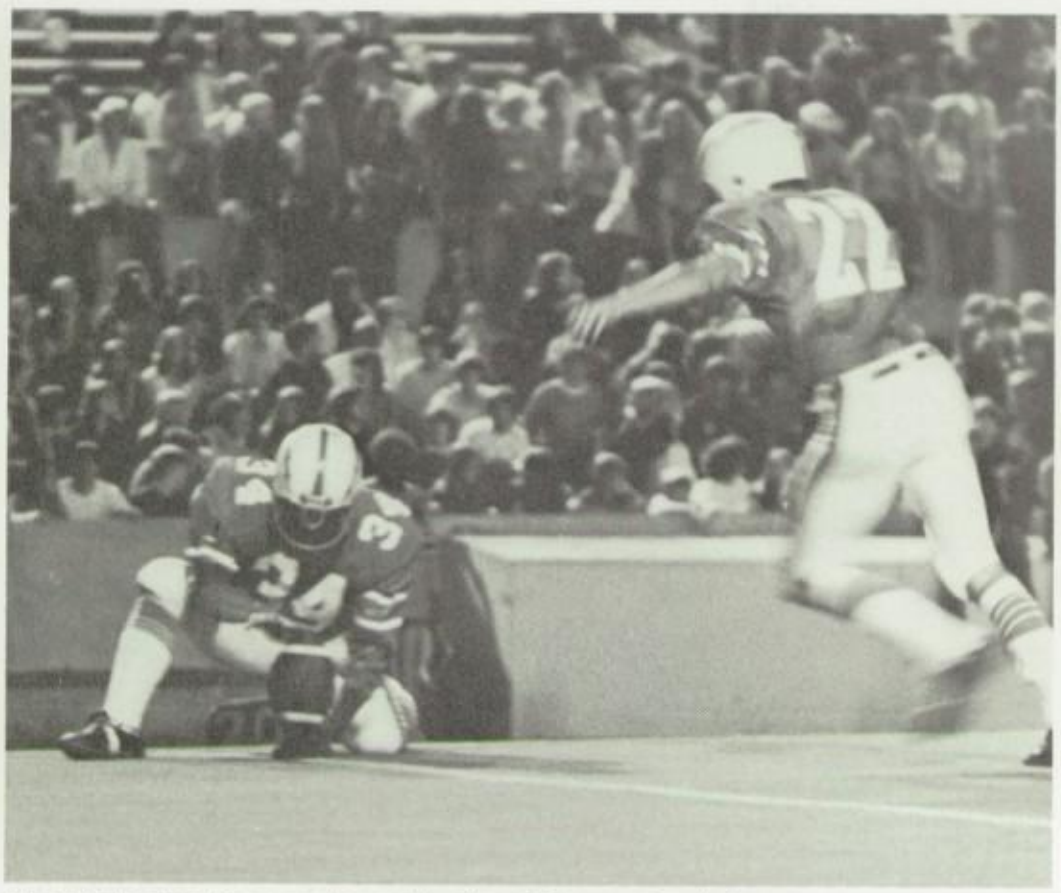
Chargers Secure Winning Season



Brian Hale aims for an extra point.after a Charger touchdown.

After two weeks of seemingly unending practices, we opened our season with scrimmages against Okmulgee and Muskogee. With these preseason warm-ups under our belts, we played in the all-city preview, losing to Washington in the semi-finals. Our season opener found us sporting another disappointing loss to the Hornets, the eventual state champs. Rebounding off this loss we beat Edison and McAlester in the next two games. Two weeks later we lost to Hale in our conference opener but the most devastating loss was to Enid. This loss knocked us out of the state playoff competition. We finished fourth in conference with a two and three record. We started our season hoping to avenge the one loss disappointment of last year, but losses in important conference games kept us from achieving a state championship.

Rick Roop strains for yardage against Hale.

We came to Memorial unsure of what high school football was like. Coaches Richard Chapman and Jim Sanders introduced us to the hard work and dedication that it takes to become a Charger. Our coaches kept us hard at work to improve throughout the season. We played well against our conference foes winning two games, but tying a hard fought contest against Hale. The non-conference games were less successful as we won two games and lost two. The contest against Mason was a scoreless defensive battle. We played before sparse crowds, but we learned fundamentals which we will use as varsity Chargers.

Determined to have a great season, we began running two months before scheduled practices started. Our first meet against Edison was a big disappointment, but hard work and determination caused steady improvement. We ran against the states toughest competition and placed well, never finishing lower than fourth in all meets. We were extremely proud of our first place finish in the conference as it was an uphill battle against Hale. The state meet resulted in a third place finish for us, the second best record of all Charger cross country teams.

CHARGERETTES

At half-time, Chargerettes march to the music of "Patton".

Starting with 270 members we hoped for an outstanding year. We treated the athletes with favors before every game and baked cakes to be shared by all the players. Decorating the halls and the locker room was a lot of hard work, but was nothing compared to our physical efforts in the powderpuff football game. The seniors found that the combination of the drizzly weather and the tough junior team was unbeatable. We also sponsored a baby face contest. Students voted with pennies for the cutest baby and chose Billy Pielsticker Mr. Baby Face. Our job required seemingly unending effort, sometimes even extending through the night when we decorated the athletes' homes and held a surprise sunrise breakfast for the football players.

Three of us from each class devoted much of our time and energy to cheerleading for Memorial. We represented the school at three different competitions. In June, we spent five work-filled days at O. U. with 107 cheerleading squads from Oklahoma, Texas, and Kansas. We brought home first place ribbons, the spirit stick and the Coca-Cola Award. We also entered a city and a state competition, rating first place awards in both. Being cheerleader not only included practicing for and entering competitions, but also, more important, leading cheers at sports events and decorating locker rooms, buses, and halls with posters, crepe paper, and balloons.

With the traditional Howdy Dance we began the year giving the students an opportunity to get acquainted with old and new friends. In an effort to promote more student involvement, new projects were initiated including the Save Our Trees campaign. We gave an all-out effort placing first in total tonnage. With the money earned we were able to pull ourselves out of debt. As in the past, we planned and staged the coronation assembly and half-time show. The holiday season soon came upon us and with it we sponsored the Christmas Dance. Despite the snowy conditions, the dance was a success. The next few months were filled with plans for Spirit Week. We tried to provide a variety of activities to make this last project a success. With the installation of new officers, a year of change came to an end.

Community Benefits From Girls' Groups

As a service organization, we served our school and community in beneficial activities. As a member of Gamma Sigma, we were each expected to earn three service hours per semester by participating in a club project or working for a teacher. Among our activities were ushering at Tulsa Little Theatre, selling mums and boutonnieres for Coronation, and helping at Memorial sponsored sports events such as Loyalty Night, and the Tournament of Champions. To conclude our year we held a tea for interested juniors and selected the first twenty-five members for the upcoming year.

This year we were one of the busiest service organizations at Memorial. By selling tootsie pops before school Junior Civitan supported a foster child in Park Hill, Oklahoma. Additional money was raised by selling fruit cakes and holding the "Mr. Hairy Legs Contest." These funds allowed us to give a party at the Children's Medical Center. We also helped the Jaycees take underprivileged children Christmas shopping. Our final project was decorating and assisting the Spring Formal at Hissom Memorial Center.

Under the leadership of president Brian Hale, Interact met every other Tuesday night to promote various community services and school projects. To end our year we held the tricycle races during Spirit Week which was our organization's chief fund raising project.

A new interest that we developed this year was film producing, and we sponsored Film Night as a finale to our discoveries. On some occasions Key Club became part-time school cleaners in an effort to help beautify the school grounds. When we were needed, we became popcorn sellers at basketball games and after school. KEY CLUB

Early morning practices preceded the half-time performances we presented on behalf of Memorial. Attempting to represent the red, white, and blue in unique ways, we experimented with new routines in our shows. Under the direction of Mr. Good, we performed new music and variations of old favorites. We raised money to help purchase new uniforms which finally arrived in time for our last home game. The Big Blue Machine received superior ratings in many band contests throughout the year.

TAPS XII Staff Produces Personalized Book

TAPS XII STAFF

Brian Wilson and Jeff Davis portray books in "Taps XII Goes On".

Our goal was to make Taps XII a more personalized yearbook, one to which the students and faculty could relate. We wrote about the year from the students' point of view in an effort to help us better remember our high school days. At the beginning of the year most of us knew little of the headaches and frustrations facing us. After rewriting headlines, captions and copy many times, however, we learned much about journalism and the work involved in producing a publication. As a smaller staff we became close by celebrating birthdays and holidays together and working on our assembly. When the yearbook was finally in and the last deadline met, we looked back and remembered the good times we had.

The usual rush of fall activities got under way with our annual Howdy Day which provided students a chance to join various organizations, buy Howdy Hats, and get reacquainted with school in general. The halls were covered with posters in an effort to display our spirit and loyalty for Memorial teams. Football games proved to be the place to be on Friday night and almost everyone participated in one way or another. If we weren't involved in pep assemblies, the band, or on the team, we could most assuredly be found near the fifty-yard line cheering and clapping for each Charger touchdown. As a result of the interest the Student Council initiated in the paper drive, many of us spent our Saturday afternoons collecting newspapers and phone books. As the fall months came to a close, we found ourselves leading the city wide paper drive, completing a disappointing football season, and looking forward to Christmas vacation.

In keeping with tradition set years before, we elected a school queen, Miss Memorial XI. As early as the first month of school, speculation began as to who would be this year's Miss Memorial. Each class elected its own attendants, but the choice of queen was up to us all. Excitement arose as we cast our final ballots. Only the Student Council officers knew who was to be crowned, though we all had our own ideas. Time for the coronation assembly finally arrived, and we watched as the attendants were presented in traditional red, white, and blue velvet. The moment came and Harold stepped to the microphone to announce that Diane Parker was Miss Memorial XI. After the assembly we smiled, cried, and offered congratulations to our queen. The day was Diane's and there was more to come. We saw her court presented at half-time of the football game for the traditional ride around the track. The Coronation Dance followed the game, where we all got together to celebrate our football victory and share the excitement of coronation.

Student Council officers await the announcement of Miss Memorial XI.

"Geraldine," Harold Brookens relates news of his call from Alexis.

"Taps XII Goes On" sings the Taps staff in their grand finale.

Mr. Schuler and Coach Chapman ponder their rejection by Tappy Cavelleri.

Amid laughter and applause we watched as the tradition of a yearbook assembly was revived by the Taps XII staff. The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour was used as the theme, and we greeted an off-key Sonny and Cher with a series of cat calls and whistles that eventually turned to laughter before their first song was over. The production was complete with take-offs on well-known commercials and a new version of "Love Story" starring Tappy Cavvelleri and Oliver Bokachita.
Our teachers were willing to take part and as a result, stole the show. Mrs. Creager surprised us with her appearance in long hair, blue jeans, and a halter top, while Mr. Schuler and Coach Chapman debuted as yearbooks. By the time the curtain fell most of us were glad we had been there.

Dean Roberts tries to persuade Judy Harshman to trade her Taps.

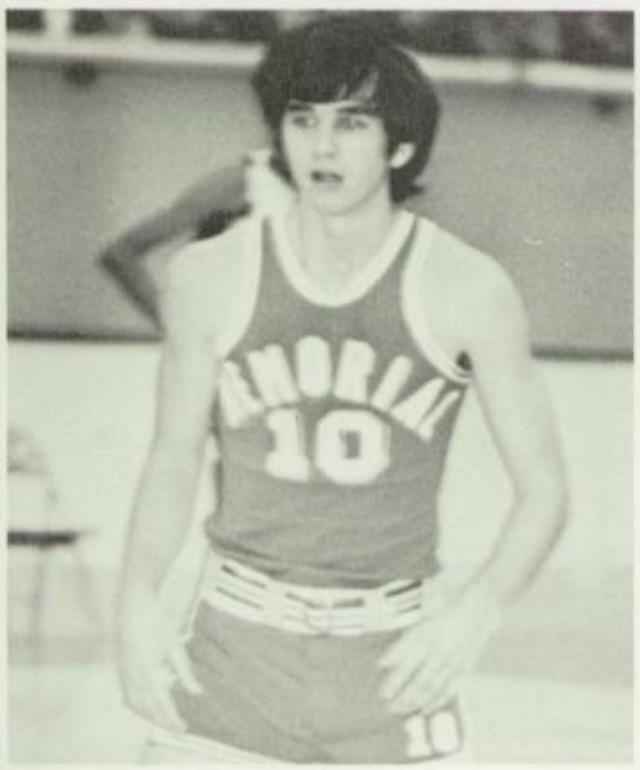
Students of the Months Chosen for Winter

DECEMBER—JEAN ANN WATSON was the girl chosen for December. Her senior year she was a member of Gymnastics Club, Pep Club and Senior Board. She was also elected as Senior Queen Attendant in the fall. DALE BELL was in charge of all the senior activities as President of the Senior Class. He was a member of Interact and contributed to Memorial's athletic program by playing baseball for the Chargers.

JANUARY—KAREN YADON was involved in various activities this year. She was a member of National Honor Society, Masque and Gavel, Gamma Sigma, Concert Chorus, and Bicycle Club. She also won several trophies for her talents in speech and drama. Six-foot-four-inch BILL PATTERSON played a big part in Memorial's basketball program. He was named to the All-City and All-State Tournament basketball teams. He was also named Most Valuable Player in the state basketball tournament where the Chargers took first place.



FEBRUARY—MARIANNE ADAMS received the honor this month. Marianne was a cheerleader her sophomore and junior years, but decided to give it up during her senior year, so that she could devote more time to her other interests which included handicrafts, leatherwork, woodwork, and macrame. KENNY HAYES, as a senior, was a member of Interact and played on the Charger basketball team that won Conference, Regional, Area, and State titles. Kenny started for the team his sophomore, junior, and senior years. He was also named to the All-Conference basketball team.

With the return of three starters, we set out for the '73-'74 basketball season with high expectations. Encouraged also by our undefeated summer league play, we set out to accomplish many goals. Among these were to take conference, to win our own Tournament of Champions and to advance to the state tournament by winning the regional and area tournaments. Led by a determined Coach West, our first goal came when we defeated Washington in the finals of the Tournament of Champions. Little did we know what still lay in front of us. Possessing great team balance including a strong bench, we took conference with only a loss to Ponca City. We compiled a 19-3 season record and were top seated in the regional and area tournaments. Playing with the realization of a trip to Oklahoma City and the state tournament, we defeated McLain in the finals of the Regionals, and went on to stomp Hale by a 30 point margin in the area tournament, leaving us with the last and final goal to accomplish—the State 4A Championship. We defeated Altus and Norman to face Oklahoma City Northwest in the finals. With tension running high down to the last second, we emerged victorious by a two point margin. Our dream had been realized; we were the State Champs!

Under the guidance of Coaches Quinn and Eichling, we worked hard and compiled a successful 8 and 4 season record. Losing tough games to Rogers and Hale, we earned a 4 and 4 conference record. Few people came to see us play, but we played our best because we enjoyed the game and wanted to compete. In our practices we worked to develop the fundamental basketball skills to prepare us for the varsity team.

Senior David McQuaig puts a half-nelson on an opponent.

Anchored by returning state champion David McQuaig, and several other senior lettermen, we had an optimistic outlook towards the season. Starting under new head coach Jerry Walters, we crowned McQuaig and David Nelson as state champions and both went undefeated and finished first in all tournaments. Bob Krah at 115 and Dan Black at heavyweight also were solid performers all season. Hard practices kept us in shape as we worked to learn new holds to improve our wrestling. Our team record was four wins, four losses and one tie as we had a high finish of second at the Webster tourney. We finished no lower than 6th in any tourney and finished third in our conference. We ended the year with a successful fourth place finish at state.

Led by several experienced competitive swimmers, we completed one of the most successful seasons in Memorial swimming history. We placed first in the all-city meet, first in our conference, and third in the state meet. In our dual meets we swam well, losing only a heartbreaker to Norman. We were led by four senior swimmers, Brian Hall, John Zimmerman, Bill Hobson, and Jeff Meyers and supported by junior swimmers, Andy Baugh, Bob Benjamin, Mick Coleman, John Middleton and Griff Thompson. At our own Charger Relays we placed second, and at the O. S. U. Relays, third. Hard work and dedication paid off again as we completed a satisfactory season record.

American Field Service International encouraged interest in other countries. Our main project this year was supporting Paulo Neiva, a senior from Brazil. We sold popcorn and zemis at winter sports events, and worked with the adult chapter of AFSI to support our organization. Along with the work, we spent time together at several parties. Our city-wide International dinner in February gave us a chance to meet foreign students from other Tulsa schools. We were fortunate this year to have Paulo share a part of his life with us.

FBLA

Future Business Leaders of America was one of Memorial's newest clubs. Our purpose was to promote understanding and interest in the various occupations in the field of business. Field trips, speakers, service projects, the Teacher Turkey Race, a coat drive, and a Christmas card sale were our major activities. Any profits we made were put into a scholarship fund for an FBLA member or used to send us to the FBLA state leadership conference in Oklahoma City. Attending this conference provided us an opportunity to meet other people from the state and learn even more about business and business competition.

In our first year of operation, Distributive Education Program became a very active and constructive organization. Our purpose was to give students a chance to gain experience from working while in school. We not only sponsored our own toy drive and canned foods drive, but we actively supported many other school and civic projects. In addition, working students' managers helped raise money to buy Christmas trees and gifts for rest homes.

Masque and Gavel's "One Acts" Promote Member Involvement

We studied the theatre, both by observing it and by participating in it. We enjoyed performing on and off the stage. We used our public speaking talents at state contests where we won superior ratings. Our annual Night of One Acts provided the club extra money and also gave the members added experience on the stage. The leadership of Mrs. Cora MacDonald and our enthusiasm for our work enabled us to become the fastest growing club in the school.

HEALTH CAREERS CLUB

After eliminating last year's debt of $756, we became, once again, a profitable organization. Our purpose this year was to raise money, and to serve our school and community. Throughout the year we worked with the Red Cross County Youth Council, participating in such city-wide projects as the Bixby Day Camp for children of migrant workers. A "Thanks-for-Giving" enrollment drive gave us enough monetary security to sell singing Christmas carols and to hold a benefit car wash. Due to successful service and fund-raising projects, we completed the year in the black.

With a flare of interest from a few students with 10-speed bikes, we formed a club in order to enjoy riding and racing together. We made several excursions to local lakes and we were occasionally seen riding together around the city. Workouts of twenty miles every morning kept us in shape for the long distance trips we took on weekends and holidays. We feel that through our efforts we also furthered the cause of ecology and encouraged the saving of energy.

Considering possible careers in medicine, our goal was to find out more about the profession. We toured several Tulsa hospital wards, including the Hillcrest Burn Center. At our bi-monthly meetings we often heard lectures on such topics as V.D. and birth control. Under the supervision of Miss Newman we researched various topics answering many of our own questions.

Participating in chorus gave us the opportunity to improve our voices and to perform with groups before large audiences. We were divided into many vocal music groups such as Concert Chorus Mixed Chorus, as well as Girls' Chorus and Advanced Girls' Chorus. We presented concerts throughout the year and many of us performed in the all-school musical, Oklahoma. All of us competed in the district contest and received high ratings which qualified most of us for state competition. Rehearsing before school, after school and even during some evenings paid dividends in our music performances and helped mold an outstanding vocal music department.

STAGECRAFT

Delivering and running the equipment was our part in the A. V. department. We were responsible for the audio-visual aids from the phonographs to the video tape equipment. Mrs. Deanna Handshy supervised us and also handled the scheduling of equipment. The job we performed was important, because it added visual aids and variety to Memorial classes.

Before every stage production at school we planned and constructed the needed scenery and props. Mr. Poss planned and directed our efforts which often included painting backgrounds, building furniture props, and handling the lights and sound production. From working with assemblies and drama productions we gained valuable experience in stagecraft.

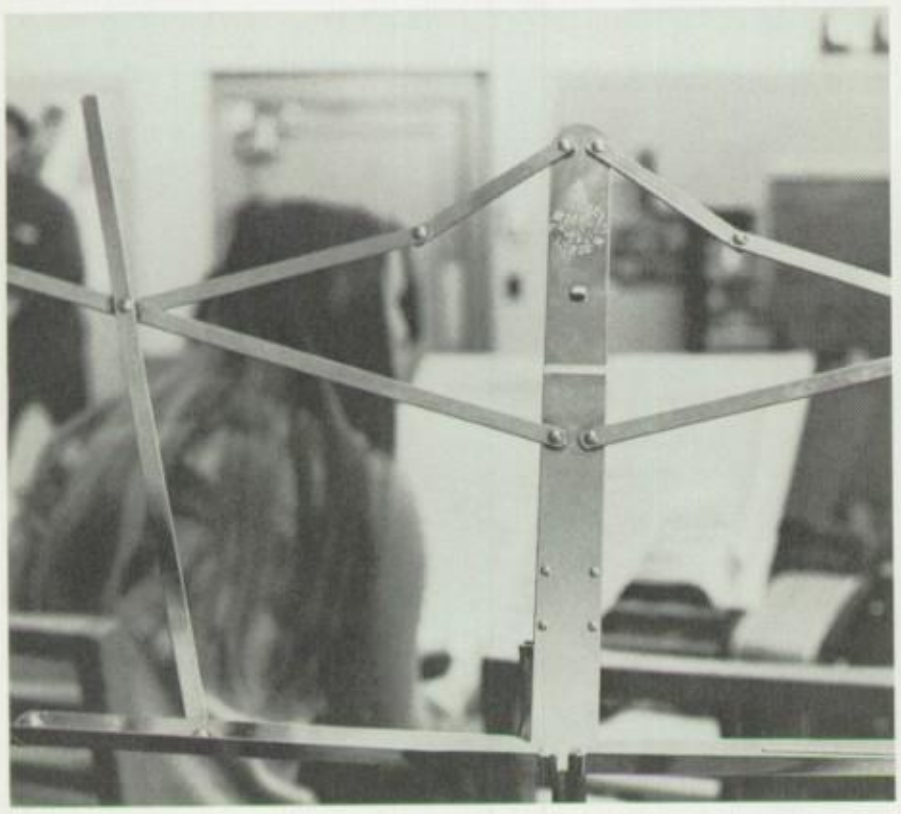
GIRLS' CHORUS



Orchestra drummer, Richard Erickson, practices a new arrangement.

Girls' Chorus, Mixed Chorus, and Concert Chorus combine to sing at Vespers.

Although we worked individually on our own instruments, we combined to form the orchestra. Directed by Mr. Good, we accompanied the choruses and provided all music for the school production of "Oklahoma!". Our hours of practice and preparation for state and district contests were rewarded when we received high ratings in both.

As members of Girls' Chorus we worked to develop our musical skills and talents. Much of our time was spent practicing, and often we combined with the Advanced Girls' Chorus. We attended state and district contests where we earned superior ratings. Guided by Mr. Beck, we gained valuable music background and experience in performing.

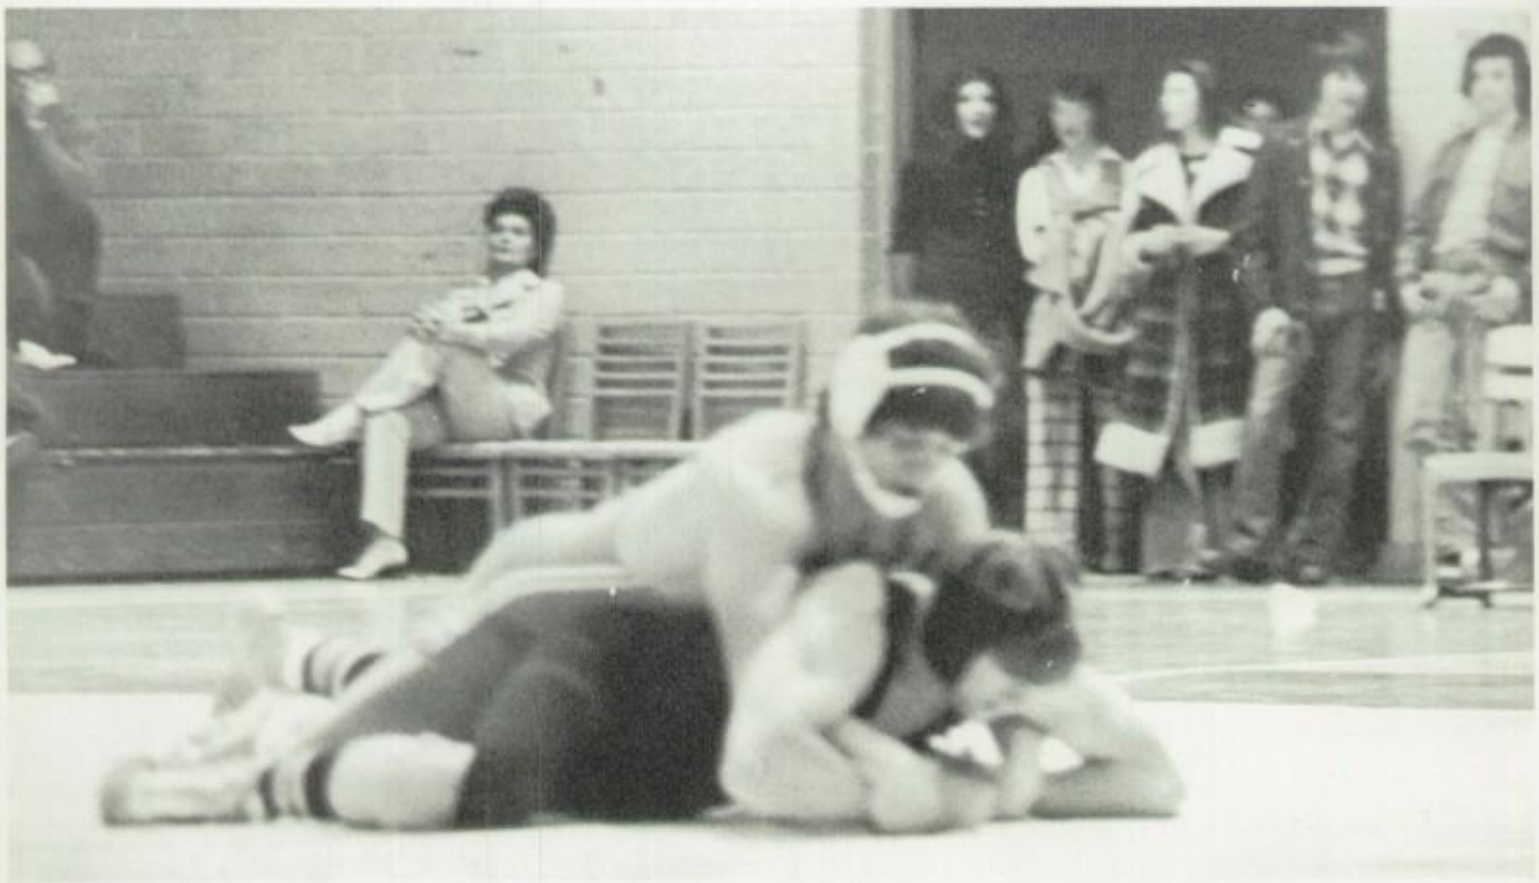
Loyalty Night Focuses on Winter Sports



David McQuaig pins another opponent on Loyalty Night.

For the eighth consecutive year, we had the opportunity to view our winter sports teams in action at the annual Loyalty Night. Preceded by a PTA sponsored supper, the activities began with a swim meet. Although we suffered a disappointing loss to Norman, our spirit was undaunted as we moved to fill the gym. Our roundballers played impressively against conference rival Enid, taking a 38-25 lead to the locker room at half-time. During the interim we were entertained by the Chargerettes. In the second half a 23 point lead gave all 15 Chargers a chance to play, with the final score being 81-49. In the last event our wrestlers were edged by Hale 27-19, even though state champions David McQuaig and David Nelson added outstanding victories to the team effort. Although we came away with only one Charger victory, the evening proved to be a success in boosting enthusiasm for winter sports.

Winter Months Bring Seasonal Events

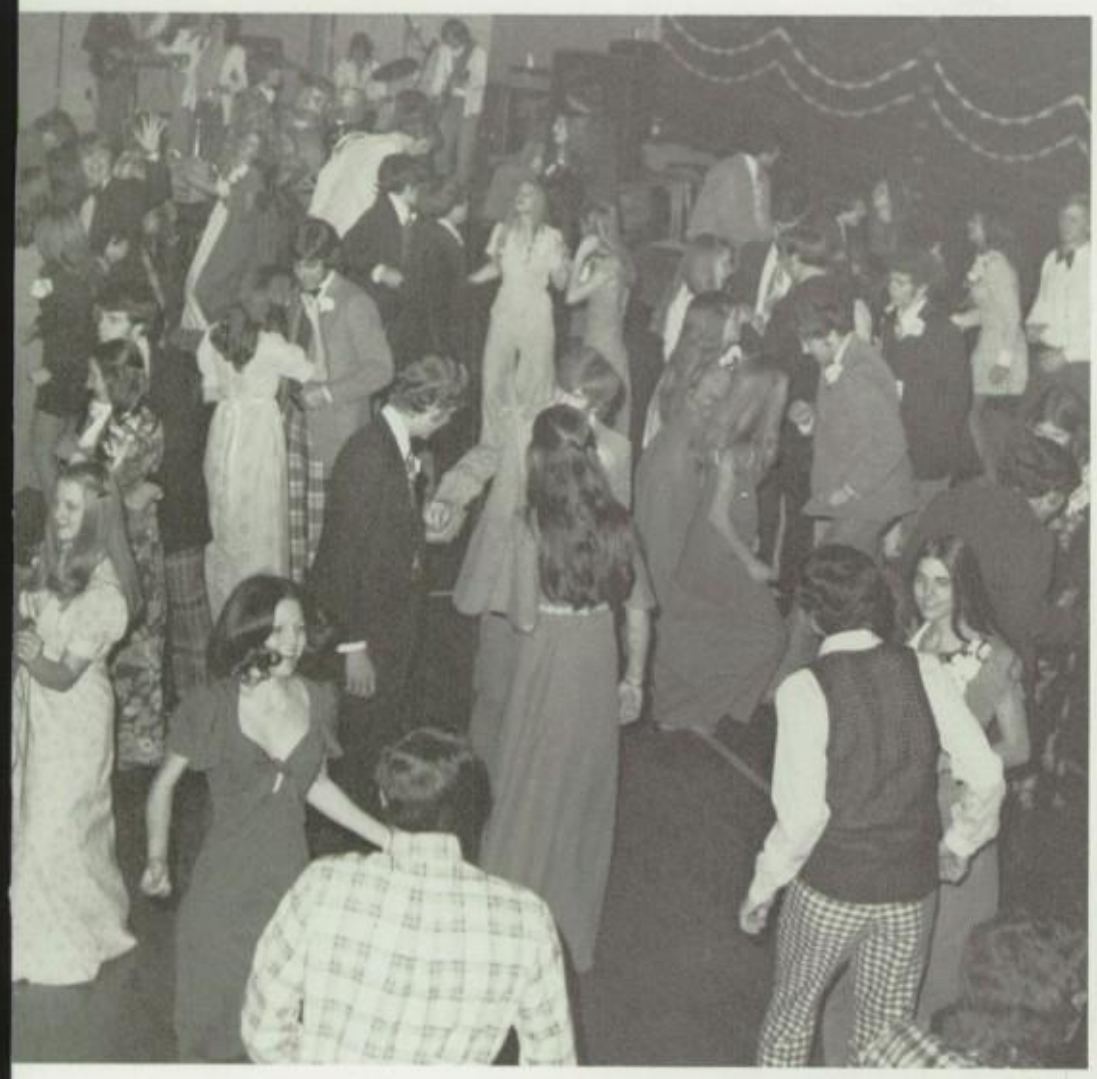
Chargers move to the music at the Valentine Dance.

Chargers receive the first place trophy in the Tournament of Champions.



With the school year in full swing, we began to put our enthusiasm into extra-curricular activities centering around the season. Christmas and Valentine's Day brought the traditions of sending cards, buying gifts, and attending dances. Starting in late November, we cheered our winning basketball team in their quest for conference, Regional, and Tournament of Champions titles. The varsity basketball team was not the only team we enjoyed. For the second year we challenged the faculty in the Stuco basketball game. Many of us were interested in things other than sports, and the winter months brought long hours of practice for the speech department. We sent representatives to the state-wide speech competition, and Masque and Gavel presented the Night of One Acts. As the winter months drew to close we turned our backs on snowy weather and looked toward spring.

Rated as one of the top teams in the state, we looked forward to a good season. With six returning starters, we had experience and depth. Playing well in our conference, we finished third as top-ranked Hale and Rogers proved to be our toughest conference opponents. Centerfielder Mike Miller, first baseman Kevin Shell and right fielder Greg Ameringer led the hitting attack as they all posted averages of over .300. The pitching staff was led by lefthander, Burly White, and righthanders, Dale Bell and Dave Gilleland. In the regional tournament we lost the first game to McLain, but won the next three straight games to stay in contention for the regional title. Facing McLain again we won the first game, but were defeated by one run in the finals.

Playing to improve our batting, throwing and running skills we posted a 7 and 2 season record. Under the direction of Coach Quinn, we ran laps and hustled every afternoon at practice to learn the game of baseball. Chasing foul balls at varsity games was also a part of the B-team schedule. Competing against other teams in Tulsa, we learned sportsmanship and achieved skills which we hope will help us make the varsity team next year.

Graduating most of the point producing tracksters last spring, we ran hard to overcome our lack of experience. Led by seniors Don Rubottom, Rob Beck, Tom Hembree and juniors Allen Braumiller, Joey Robinson and Mike Gaither, we won all of our dual meets. Practices consisted of up-and-down workouts and miles of distance work. We finished second in the Tulsa Classic and Central Invitational and fourth in conference. At regionals we placed fifth as a team. We ended the season by placing eleventh at the state meet.

We slipped in the All-City, placing second behind Edison whom we had beaten the week before in a dual. At the conference and regional meets we placed first with well balanced scores. Medalists for the Chargers in tournament action were Kenny Albright, Kurt Coggins, Gerry Burton and Keith Burkhart. The state tournament netted us a third place and a successful end to our season.

Starting under new head coach Richard Chapman and sporting the team's first female player, we posted a 14-2-1 season. Led by Bruce Proctor, Brad Richison, Jeff Medlock, and Don Brady, we lost only two dual meets, both to Edison. We placed second in both the conference and all-city tournaments and fifth at Midwest City. Hard practices after school improved the team as we progressed steadily throughout the season. Bruce Proctor and Jeff Medlock combined in doubles, losing only one match. We ended the season with a fifth place finish at the state tournament.

Janis Solomon and Debbie Metlitz preside over candy sales after school.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Opal Carson, we met every Friday morning in preparation for chess intramurals and tournaments. With several new members in our club, we found that it was necessary not only to improve our own skills, but also to teach others. Although our playing was disappointing in the Rogers and East Central tournaments, we managed a fourth-place in the inter-city competition to complete our year.

Although math is a subject many students despise, we found that it could be both interesting and fun. Selling candy after school and giving a party for all the students who made A's in math was not the only purpose of the Math Club. Sponsored by Mr. James Reynolds, we developed a greater interest in math by participating in a school-wide math testing program and by listening to several guest lecturers. Although we were not a service organization, we helped students who had problems in math by tutoring them throughout the year. By expanding our own knowledge in math this year, we were able to stimulate interest in others.

Due to the invasion of a family of termites living in our equipment room, the building of our own radio station got off to a slow start. After finally getting our room back together, we were eager to begin operating our own radio equipment. We sought to localize communications from around the world as well as those from our own city. Under the leadership of Mr. Wayne Nelson, this year's experience helped to prepare us for possible future vocations in building and repairing radios.

Many students and teachers felt that a program was needed to promote better understanding of our heritage, not only as a nation, but also as a city and state. Out of these feelings came the Heritage Club. We attended the dedication of the Council Oak Tree, and toured some of Tulsa's historical downtown buildings. We were also fortunate to receive a private tour of Gilcrease Art Museum and to hear a talk on the background of the Gilcrease property. Throughout the year we encouraged others to have an interest in our heritage, and we developed in ourselves a better understanding of its importance.

Painting, sculpting, glueing and smearing our way through every after-school meeting, we endeavored to provide a little more interest and color for the ordinary Wednesday. As a group we took field trips to neighboring museums, picked up hints on techniques from guest speakers, and participated in group activities. We made several attempts at creativity including Raku, free form paper, and clay and elastic bubble sculptures. We sponsored a number of films to earn money for cash prizes to award in the Memorial Art Show. This show, as well as the other club activities, was supervised by Mr. Dennis Rutledge.

Under the honorary presidency of Ingrid Kuhn, a foreign exchange student from West Germany, we learned much about the true German culture and language. With other German Clubs throughout Tulsa we attended a seminar given by the ORU German Club. There we watched a German film and met other German students. Our sponsor, Mr. Brown, and Ingrid generated to us a special interest in the romance and the beauty of Germany.

As a group of sports-minded girls, we enjoyed competing with girls in other schools as well as with each other. Meeting every other Wednesday, we played softball, basketball and volleyball to increase our skills in these sports. Competing in tennis, table tennis, track and field meets enabled us to meet girls from other schools who were interested in recreation. We entered the Tulsa Public School's "Sport's Day", and our team took second in All-City. Sponsored by Miss Wattenbarger and Mrs. Cairns, we had the opportunities to participate in the sports of our interests.

Every Tuesday after school we worked to develop skills in various fields of gymnastics. Perfection of these skills came as we practiced stunts on the trampoline and tumbling mats. New routines and sore muscles characterized our accomplishments as gymnasts. Our main event of the year was the gymnaestrada, and our efforts in floor exercise, uneven bars, vaulting and balance beam were rewarded with many high placements. Under the guidance of Miss Wattenbarger we acquired skill, concentration and control.

Publishing the Sentinel twice a month required a group effort of our eleven member staff. Although we were all new to newspaper work, we sold ads, created stories, and reported school events, as well as wrote, typed and edited our work. We spent much time on each issue and often found ourselves working at the printers on Monday evenings. We published editorials which gave students a chance to speak out. The editorials were sometimes controversial, often drawing angry responses from those with opposing views. By learning from our past mistakes and initiating new ideas, we gained knowledge of the fundamentals of journalism while trying to supply Memorial a newspaper of interest to everyone.

Twenty-two of us seniors, under the direction of Mrs. Julie Woodruff, worked together to publish the anthology. We called the finished work Amaranth, the name of a tiny imaginary flower, and tried to make it reflective of the students. We began the year with a sales campaign and a drive to encourage students to submit entries. Soon we were organizing art work and poetry for the April deadline. We tried to use the anthology to give each student the opportunity to express his creativity and expand his imagination.

In recent years computers have attracted a great deal of interest due to their potential role in our society. Memorial's computer math club stemmed from this interest. Our class, directed by Mr. Bing Vassaur, met during first hour at the Vo-Tech center where we learned the basics of key punching and computer programming, and also studied the relationships between math and computers. Visiting the mini-computer at TU and taking various other field trips gave us the chance to experiment with different kinds of computers. Through this course we gained a basic knowledge of operating a computer which helped us in considering the possibility of a career in computer programming.

Following a year of perfecting our water skills and grace, we presented our annual show, this year entitled "Channel Swim." Inspired by popular television features, our routine themes ranged from spy thrillers and cartoons to classic movies and commercials. Many of us took part in the writing and directing of the numbers and we each fashioned our own costumes. Mrs. Sharon Cairns coordinated our efforts in the final production which we presented in April.

The long-awaited first day of spring arrived, complete with sunshine and four inches of snow. In spite of the wintry weather spring fever came and brought with it a new outlet for our energy streaking. Not to be outdone by any other school we had our own set of streakers. Many of us were appalled by this "display", but most of us found it to be an amusing break in the school routine. Spring also brought the annual Spirit Week with a different event scheduled each day. For the first time the talent show was held after school hours, and we were entertained by piano players, the Marx Brothers, the Classy Lassies and the Treble Clefs. In March girl gymnasts entered the gymnaestrada representing us well by placing high in all events and winning the entire meet. After several date changes, we finally held the Sadie Hawkins Dance on April 19, and following tradition, the girls presented the boys garters, vegetable corsages and a free date. The last few weeks of school kept all of us busy. While seniors were preparing for graduation, sophomores and juniors were arranging classes for next year. Most of us thought that the last day of school would never arrive, but finally we were turning in our books and getting our report cards as the 1973-74 school year drew to a close.

The Classy Lassies from Saddle Oxford sing "My Baby Said Yes" in the talent show.

After working to learn and perfect our swimming skills, we were ready to plan our annual show, entitled "Channel Swim." We presented take-offs on well-known television shows with numbers ranging from the Keystone Cops to Love Story. The creative writing class helped us by writing humorous skits to precede each routine, and the varsity swimmers appeared in several of our numbers. We worked diligently directing, choreographing and costuming each routine to produce a well-coordinated show.

"Images" was the theme we chose for this year's fashion show. All of us in clothing classes had the opportunity to display the sewing skills we had learned throughout the year. Fashions modeled ranged from informal pant suits to elegant prom dresses. The Clothing III students supervised the set design and wrote the script for the show which was presented under the guidance of Mrs. Hamilton.

The morning after commencement parties some of us were surprised to find that we could get up for the senior breakfast scheduled at the unreasonable hour of 8 o'clock. When we entered the Sheraton, we found 500 other seniors gazing at the announcement board that read, "Memorial Senior Breakfast—9 a.m." Finally convincing the management to let us in, we were entertained by the juniors who sang and gave "awards" to deserving seniors. When we were finally served, we gobbled down our food in an effort to make it back to Memorial for the Farewell Assembly. The Stage Band opened the assembly by playing many popular selections, with several of the members performing solos. The Treble Clefs made their appearance amid screams from adoring senior girls. Kathy Kindrick closed the assembly by singing "The Way We Were", and we then dispensed into the halls to say our final goodbyes.

breakfast.

Mr. Johnson delivers a farewell message to the senior class.

For many of us one of the highlights of our graduation was the senior prom. Preparations began weeks ahead of time with the selecting of dresses, renting of tuxes, and planning of parties. Finally Saturday arrived and the local restaurants and florists found their businesses booming. As we entered the Civic Center Saturday night, we were surrounded by streamers and helium-filled balloons. Many of us failed to recognize our classmates who were dressed in something other than jeans for the first time in three years. The music of the "Brass Box" filled the air, and we danced until midnight. When the last song had ended, we parted only to gather again in smaller groups for festivities which lasted far into the early morning. Ending the evening with early breakfasts, we went home to sleep a few hours before Vespers.

Cheers arise from the graduates as the Commencement ceremony ends.

When we were in grade school, our high school graduation seemed an impossibility, but for the 745 of us in the class of '74, graduation became a reality. We received our caps and gowns, and though many of us thought they were ugly, we were excited to get them. Vespers came all too early on Sunday after the prom, but most of us managed to get there. Reverend David McKechnie spoke to us about our faith and maturity, telling us that our maturity was dependent upon the people in whom we placed our faith. On May 21 our Commencement finally arrived. The Civic Center was filled with our families and friends, and as we stood waiting to march onto the floor, we realized that this would be the last time we would be together as a class. During the ceremony Congressman James R. Jones addressed us and in his speech he urged us to stand up for what we believe. His advice to us was to live life to the fullest because too soon it would be over. Together we walked across the stage to receive our diplomas. We then stood and sang the Alma Mater, some of us for the first and all of us for the last time. Our high school days were over, and with them went smiles, tears, laughter, good times, and we . . . The Class of '74.

As the school year drew to a close, we looked back on the experiences which made it ours. We had potential for a great year; some of us used it while others didn't. It was left to the individual. In the years to come we will look back and laugh at the things we did, the rules we broke, the classes we hated, the people we knew, and we will remember . . . attending Memorial-Mason High School . . . the total confusion of Howdy Day . . . the most destructive Edison week ever which resulted in the totaling of numerous cars and a missing Edison mascot . . . a disappointing football season . . . 134,000 pounds of newsprint which we collected from neighborhood houses, the phone company, and trash cans . . . the crowning of Miss Memorial and dance in her honor . . . "Taps XII Goes On" . . . a banana eating contest sponsored by the sophomores . . . a different kind of senior play, "A Thurber Carnival" . . . the Wednesday night Christmas Dance, which was almost snowed out . . . a superintendent who finally closed schools for bad weather . . . Loyalty Nite and Charger Nite when budget tickets weren't good . . . our first Tournament of Champions victory in nine outings . . . the Valentine post office with "singing" valentines . . . "Oklahoma!" . . . "Chargers Take State" stickers . . . trips to Oklahoma City to support our state champion basketball team . . . the spring break we thought would never come and was over too soon . . . our very own streakers . . . Spirit Week! . . . a really good talent show . . . a hilarious 50's day . . . the Sadie Hawkins Dance when the girls did the asking . . . a break from fifth and sixth hour to see "The Ghostess with the Mostess" . . . annual presentations from the clothing classes and the Surfs . . .

We shared their goals, encouraged their efforts, and applauded their successes. They received the rewards, but because they represented us, their awards were ours as well.

In appreciation for their efforts and achievements we dedicate Taps XII to:
